Your Holiday Visit Assessment Checklist

While connecting with loved ones this holiday season, it's important to reassess the well-being of your family members. If you notice any of the following signs, we can provide you with the information and resources your loved one needs. There's no better gift than to see your loved one enjoying the best of each day with dignity and respect.

These indicators may suggest a change in your loved one's ability to care for themselves. Do these indicators seem familiar to you?

- Differences in balance; unexplained injuries/bruising
- Increased disorganization; unopened mail, laundry piling up, unpaid bills
- Unaddressed home maintenance; accumulated dirt, unwatered plants
- Expiring food; changes in how much is stocked in the refrigerator/pantry
- Noticeable changes in body odor/personal hygiene
- Signs of loneliness/depression; decreased interest in getting involved
- Changes in handwriting

Our dedicated teams are available every step of the way. Schedule your visit today to see how a Providence Senior Living community near you can help create the best day possible for your loved one—every day.
